As part of the effort, and in order to determine the link of OCMP to the National Historic Trail, a Community Activated Parks Project (CAPP) has been initiated with The City of Austin Parks and Recreation Department (PARC) to conduct historic and archaeological research within the park. The estimated cost of the project is $84,996, which includes an 8% administrative fee ($6,799.68) that ElCaT will capture for overseeing the project. ElCaT has received a $25,000 donation from Colin Corgan and The Corgan Family Fund towards the effort. Grant proposals have been submitted to: NPS – Challenge Cost Share grant program ($25,000) and HEB (up to the remaining balance of the cost of the project.) ElCaT member and volunteer, Brian Beattie, is also working to raise funds through donations from members of the artistic and musical community in Austin and other potential donors.

A $9,285 grant has been awarded by the Partnership for the National Trails System to provide funding for an intern to help coordinate the Model Trail Community outreach events in Central Texas. Titled, El Camino Real de los Tejas: Its History, People, and Places the exhibit has three themes that focus on: 1) Cattle Drives along the Camino in support of the American Revolution, 2) Settlement patterns along the trail, and 3) How to see and experience the trail today. More information about the exhibit, including costs, policies, and guidelines can be seen here: <https://www.elcaminorealdelestejas.org/travel-the-rail/camino-real-traveling-exhibit/>
